by Heney in his questions resulted in the ruin of his business—that of a saloonkeeper.

Hass, in the second Ruef trisl, had been passed as a juror. Then one day in court Heney dramatically produced a photograph of Hass, taken at San Quentin pentientiary in convict garb and with cropped head and with his number across his breast. Hass collapsed in court, admitting he had been a convict. He was immediately discharged from the jury.

News of the shooting spread rapidly, and an immense crowd gathered in the corridors of the court building. A large force of police, headed by Chief Biggy, surrounded the building and liept the crowd back. A number of men who were suspected of being there to create trouble were arrested. Hensy was rushed to the Emergency Hospital.

Claims Heney Rulned Him.

Hass, in a statement after the shooting, said:

"I am the wronged man. I do not care what becomes of me now. I have sacrificed myself, not for my own honor, but for the honor of those who are situated like myself. I would not have brought my four children into the world to bear such a brand if I had known that the fact that I was a former convict would become known. Heney ruined me. That is why I shot

After the shooting Judge Lawler called the court to order, and immediately ordered Ruef taken into custody, overruling the objection of Attorney Ach. Atterney Dorser asked that the witness. Gallagher also be taken into custody, but the court declined to issue the order. The judge then adjourned court until Monday.

Will Live to Prosecute Them. Heney, as he lay on the operating table, said: "I will live to prosecute both Haas and Ruef."

Close examination of the wound showed that the builet entered through the right cheek and lodged under the left ent. It barely missed the carolid artery, and all other principal arteries escaped rupture. Heney was taken to the Lane Hospital to be placed under the X-ray.

of Wrecked Vehicle.

Struck by Clay Street car No. 228 yesterday evening, one of A. D. Price's carriages was overturned, and both negroes who were occupying the carriage were pinced in serious embarrassment. The vehicle was turned over on its side and both windows were broken. One of the negroes of up and walked out of a window, but his companion remained prestrate on the floor of the vehicle. He had to be carried out.

No one was hurt, and the only damage done to the carriage was the smashing of the two windows.

He broke down in court and pleaded guilty.

Next Schmitz was tried on the same charge and convicted. Schmitz appealed, and the Appellate Court freed him on the ground that the indictment was field later on the same charge. The jury disagreed and a new trial was ordered. This was the case on trial to fay, when the tragedy occurred.

After the trial of Ruef began a man named Biake was convicted of tampering with the jury. Blake confessed in court afterward that he had been promised $16,000 by coursel for Ruef if he would serve his term and for testiffy for the State.

The Annual Sermon.

The Annual Sermon.

The annual sermon was delivered by the Rev. W. V. Savage, of Churchland, from the 23d verse of the 1st chapter of I. Corinthians: "But we preach Christ crucified." Mr. Savage said it had become the custom in some circles to speak gilbly of the "love of God" as it is revealed in nature. "These people tell us that they see the love of God in the whispering of a summer breeze.

love of God in the whispering of a summer breeze.

"But how about that breeze when it has grown into a cyclone? Is its, the love of God through nature which throws a vessel on the rocks, disregarding human agony and human life, and laughs at the havoc it has wrought? Christ crucified was the only sufficient revelation of His love. If God gave His Son to save man, isn't it a legitimate deduction that in the revelation of the purpose to save at such a cost, there must have been something worth saving? Jesus Christ died in the place of a man, absolutely, not to make a mere spectacle of God's not to make a mere spectacle of God's love. The business of a minister is to preach Christ grucified. We reach Christ crucified. We have reached enough when we have reached that."

Telegrams of Greeting.

After the sermon, which was heard with profound attention, Secretary Smith announced the appointment of the following committees: Committee on Boards-R. S. Barbour,
